RE: FCC Docket 03-104, BPL/PLC

Gentlemen:

I live in a residential area and must deal with noise all of the time. What I find disturbing about this proposal (FCC Docket 03-104) is that this will not help but add to the electronic noise situations with which we already must deal. Amateur Radio has been and is continuing to be a real asset for this country in emergency situations. To compound that capability with added noise is not a reasonable solution.

Might I also make note that there are many new technologies that are about to take off in the internet server arena and to add this additional complication could stifle if not entire destroy efforts in the area of wireless and fiber optics technologies.

Regards.
